

Help Along the Way

2000 Emergency Medical Services for Alaska Travelers

IT PAYS TO BE PREPARED

This Emergency Medical Services pamphlet was designed to help you be prepared for a crash, accident, or medical emergency while you are traveling through our Great Land. The pamphlet includes an index of emergency telephone numbers around the state, which is divided into two main sections. The first section contains a map of the Alaska and Yukon highway systems and a list of emergency telephone numbers organized by the name of the highway and its milepost.

The second section contains a map and information about emergency medical services along Alaska's Marine Highway system. Included is a list of the communities that are stops on the Marine Highway and the emergency phone in each. Telephone numbers of hospitals and health clinics are also listed.

To help assure your safe trip through Alaska, we have included some important Alaska laws that apply to all motorists. We hope you will become familiar with these laws and make a commitment to abide by them. Please keep this pamphlet handy so you will be able to respond quickly in an emergency.

ABIDE BY ALASKA'S LAWS

Alaska Seat Belt and Child Restraint Laws

Alaska's law requires every occupant of a motor vehicle to be buckled up. All children under four years of age must be properly secured in a federally approved child safety seat whenever being transported in a motor vehicle. A person four years of age or older, riding in a motor vehicle, shall be properly secured in a child safety device for a child of that age and size or in a safety belt, whichever is appropriate. The driver of a motor vehicle is legally responsible for buckling in children.

Alaska's DWI Law

Driving while intoxicated, more commonly referred to as DWI, means operating a motor vehicle, aircraft, or watercraft with a breath alcohol content of .10 or higher, or when the driver's ability is impaired by alcohol or other controlled substances.

Driving while intoxicated and/or refusal to take a breath test are serious offenses and are subject to severe penalties in the State of Alaska. Your license will be confiscated at the time of arrest and, upon conviction, you will be sentenced to at least three days in jail, a $250 fine, and a three-month license revocation.

Do not drive after drinking or after taking drugs, even medicine. Your life, the life of someone you love, or the life of a stranger traveling in your path may depend on it.

Traffic Safety Emergency Laws

Under Alaska law, any operator of a motor vehicle involved in a crash or accident must remain at the scene (except as necessary to get help) and must render assistance. Failure to do either may result in fines and/or imprisonment. Rendering assistance does not imply fault for the crash or accident.

"Good Samaritan" Law

Under Alaska law, if you render emergency aid to a person who reasonably appears to you to be in immediate need of such aid to avoid serious harm or death due to injury, illness, or emotional distress, you are not liable for civil damages as a result of an act or omission in rendering emergency aid. (You can be found liable, however, as result of gross negligence or reckless or intentional misconduct.)

Impeding Traffic

On a two-lane highway outside an urban area where passing is unsafe due to oncoming traffic or other conditions, the driver of a motor vehicle proceeding at less than the maximum authorized speed of traffic and behind whom five or more vehicles are formed in a line must turn off the roadway and allow the vehicles to pass.

Headlights On

Alaska law requires you to use your headlights when driving on roadways that are posted with signs which require headlight use. The Seward Highway from Anchorage to the Kenai Peninsula is a popular route that requires the use of headlights.

FOR CELLULAR PHONE USERS

With a few exceptions, emergency response along the Alaska highway system may be accessed by dialing 9-1-1.

FOR MARINE EMERGENCIES

To be connected with a U.S. Coast Guard emergency operator, dial the following: on a cell phone: *CG; on a land line: 1 (800) 478-5555; at sea: channel 16.

IF YOU ARE THE FIRST AT A CRASH OR ACCIDENT

This is a list of things to do if you happen to arrive first at the scene of a crash or accident.

- ✓ Prevent a second crash by pulling off the road and turning on your flashers.
- ✓ Keep calm. You should remain at the scene, except as necessary to get help.
- ✓ Immediately attend to anyone who is not breathing or has severe bleeding.
- ✓ Notify police or state troopers as soon as possible. If someone is injured, call an ambulance immediately. (See accompanying map and directory.)
- ✓ Reduce fire hazards. Turn off ignition of wrecked cars. Do not smoke!
- ✓ Do not move the injured unless they are in a burning or submerged car. Unnecessary moving often complicates injuries.
- ✓ Search the area for victims thrown from vehicles and possibly hidden in the underbrush.
- ✓ Ask one or more bystanders to go back down the road a few hundred feet and slow approaching traffic.

FIRST AID INFORMATION

- + Make sure the Emergency Medical Service has been called.
- + Do NOT move patient from the vehicle unless there is imminent danger of fire, explosion, or submersion.
- + If there is no urgent need to move patient from the vehicle, tell him NOT to move until trained help arrives.
- + Use bystanders with CPR and first aid training to care for patient.
- + Make sure patient is breathing. If you must open the airway, do so by moving the lower jaw forward without moving the head. After opening the airway, give 2 full breaths and check for a pulse. If a pulse is present but there is no breathing, give 1 quick breath every 5 seconds. Check pulse every minute to make sure heart is still beating.
- + If there's no pulse, use CPR-trained personnel to begin CPR right away. One-person CPR sequence is 15 compressions and 2 ventilations. Give compressions at a rate of 80-100 per minute. Check every few minutes for the return of a pulse. Stop CPR if a pulse is detected and recheck airway, breathing and circulation.
- + Stop bleeding right away with direct pressure but avoid direct contact with blood. Place a bulky dressing, such as a scarf or shirt, directly over the bleeding site and press firmly. If they become soaked, place more dressings over them. Do NOT remove dressings already in place.

- + If injuries permit and bleeding has not been controlled by direct pressure, injured arms/legs should be elevated above the level of the patient's heart, if possible.
- + Keep the patient warm with blankets or sleeping bags. If injuries permit and patient is lying down, raise legs 8-10 inches.
- + Recheck airway, breathing, circulation, and bleeding control often when caring for an injured person. Keep patient warm.

- + As soon as possible, take the time to wash all blood off your body and change clothes.

HIGHWAY SYSTEMS

This map shows all the highways and major roads in and leading to Alaska. Several key communities are shown, but there are many more small towns, population centers, and coastal communities that are not on the road system. We recommend that travelers use a more complete map when visiting Alaska by road.

HIGHWAY INDEX

The Highway Index on the following pages lists the emergency numbers, by milepost, that you can call to activate Alaska's emergency medical services system. By calling these numbers you can access emergency medical care and patient transport.

Use B band to call 911 for AST on GLENN HIGHWAY/TOK CUT-OFF Nelchina to Slana, RICHARDSON HIGHWAY Paxson to Pump Station 12, and near Valdez and Cordova.

SERVICES ALONG ALASKA'S MARINE HIGHWAY

If you become sick or injured aboard a vessel of the Alaska Marine Highway System, contact the Purser. You will receive prompt aid from the Emergency Trauma Technician every vessel carries. Transfer to a medical facility can be arranged, if necessary. Once you leave the ferry at any stop along its route, you will need to know who to contact in an emergency.

Most coastal communities have ambulance service, physicians, and a hospital. However, many smaller communities have neither a hospital nor a physician available. Every small community does have trained emergency responders or a health clinic or room where minor conditions may be treated, sometimes with the advice of a physician by radio or telephone. These clinics are staffed by either a nurse, physician assistant, or community health aide.

If a chartered plane is necessary to transport you to a town with more comprehensive medical care, you will be expected to pay the cost of the charter.
